

Georgetown container energy storage testing technology

Overview

Three installation-level lithium-ion battery (LIB) energy storage system (ESS) tests were conducted to the specifications of the UL 9540A standard test method [1]. Each test included a mocked-up initiating ES.

What is a containerized battery energy storage system?

Let's dive in! What are containerized BESS?

Containerized Battery Energy Storage Systems (BESS) are essentially large batteries housed within storage containers. These systems are designed to store energy from renewable sources or the grid and release it when required. This setup offers a modular and scalable solution to energy storage.

Are energy storage containers a viable alternative to traditional energy solutions?

These energy storage containers often lower capital costs and operational expenses, making them a viable economic alternative to traditional energy solutions. The modular nature of containerized systems often results in lower installation and maintenance costs compared to traditional setups.

Why should you choose a containerized energy system?

The modular nature of containerized systems often results in lower installation and maintenance costs compared to traditional setups. And when you can store up energy when it's inexpensive and then release it when energy prices are high, you can easily reduce energy costs.

What does an energy storage expert do?

Our energy storage experts work with manufacturers, utilities, project developers, communities and regulators to identify, evaluate, test and certify systems that will integrate seamlessly with today's grid, while planning for tomorrow.
