How much solar power does my RV need?

The best rule of thumb is about 100 watts per 30 amp-hours each day, but there's more to it than just putting enough panels up. Read on to learn just how much solar power your RV needs depending on what you operate, how efficient your panels are, and more.

Can you run an RV AC with solar power?

To run an RV AC with solar power, you should plan on a 700 amp-hour battery bank. Lithium ion batteries are recommended due to their superior efficiency and longer lifespan compared to lead acid batteries. You can power an RV AC with solar power, but proper planning is essential.

How much solar power do you need for a camper battery?

A 300 amp-hour camper battery, for instance, would need around 300 watts of solar power. Also keep in mind that solar panels experience a 75-90% drop in efficiency on cloudy days, so it's good to have slightly more than you need when it comes to solar power (about a 20% cushion, if possible, to account for less-than-ideal conditions).

How many volts does an RV battery put out?

An RV battery at 50% battery will put out between 12.06-12.10 volts, on average. If your voltmeter has a number below this, charge your battery immediately. If you're going to be boondocking a lot, however, it's definitely worth investing in a decent battery monitor or gauge if your RV didn't come with one.
